

Laura Ingalls Wilder Children's Literature Festival News Release September 3, 2020

Change is coming to the Laura Ingalls Wilder Children's Literature Festival. During a recent committee meeting the decision was made to take the festival in a different direction for 2020. It will now be held online due to the ongoing Covid-19 issue.

We are continuing to plan a great festival for the authors and fans alike. Each author will be asked to submit a video where they will discuss or read their books and offer them for purchase. You will be able to search for these videos on our Facebook page Laura Ingalls Wilder Children's Literature Festival and our website www.liwclf.com. You won't want to miss this event. The dates are still the same, November 5-6, 2020.

Plans are still underway for the awards presentation. The award for excellence in children's literature will go to David Harrison from Springfield, MO and the award for excellence in illustration will go to Higgins Bond from Nashville, TN.
